Homeowners Pay For Commerical Assessment Breaks

By JANE SCHNEIDER

Last year, after more than 30 years in the funeral business, the Vernon C. Wagner Funeral Home in Hicksville decided it was time to expand.

Bill Wagner, son of founder Vernon Wagner, supervised what he termed in retrospect "a major project." More than 5,000 square feet were added to the funeral home, creating two chapel-like repose rooms, a casket display room, two bathrooms, ramps for handicapped people and storage space. And although the Wagner business is considered the "baby" of funeral homes in the community — having been established more recently than other funeral homes in Hicksville — the $500,000 cost of its construction project was anything but inconsequential to the Wagners.

Because the addition to the business exceeded $10,000, the Wagner Funeral Home qualified for a state assessment abatement program, which offers commercial property owners a tax break during the 10 years following the completion of the construction.

Enacted by the state legislature in 1978 during a construction slump, the plan was designed to create construction jobs and to attract new commerce to New York State, according to Steve Latham, executive director of the Nassau County Industrial Development Agency. Now, however, the program, which local municipalities and school districts have the option to participate in, has left some businessmen dissatisfied and some school officials wondering if the program isn't outmoded.

Ordinarily when improvements are made to a property, its assessed value becomes higher and its owners pay higher taxes. Under the provisions of the state plan, however, commercial property owners who construct new buildings or improve already existing structures at a cost of more than $10,000 are entitled — in the first year after construction is completed — to a 50 percent reduction in the increased assessed value of the buildings resulting from the improvements. During each of the following nine years, the building is assessed at 5 percent more until the tenth year, when the property is assessed at its full value.

For example, if a buyer purchased vacant land worth $100,000 and built a structure assessed at $1 million, the total value of the property would be $1,100,000. The formula calls for

Police Report

The Eighth Precinct has reported the following:

• June 9: The Vehicle Theft Squad reports the arrest of a 26-year-old Hempstead man for possession of stolen property in the first degree, criminal tampering with evidence, illegal possession of a VIN and obstructing governmental administration.

The subject brought a 1968 Ford Mustang into a major auto shop in Hicksville to have some work done. A worker saw the car and thought it looked familiar. He called over another employee and they ascertained that the car was the employee's prior to him selling it to the worker's sister.

The pair found the identification number and wrote it down along with the vehicle identification number on the dash. When they confronted the subject who brought it in he got into the car and drove away. Further investigation by the Vehicle Theft Squad determined that the auto was in fact the sister's and that it had been stolen on May 19 in East Meadow. The suspect was arrested on Jerusalem and Florence Ave. in Hempstead. He allegedly disposed of the auto at an unknown location. He was arraigned in First District Court in Mineola on June 10.

The Second Precinct has reported the following:

• June 12: A storage building on Duffy Ave. in Hicksville was burglarized. Entry was made through a side door. The loss included radios.

Burglary Prevention Tip:

Do not leave a repairman alone in your home. Take him directly to the area to be serviced and stay with him.

Town Board Denies Permit

The Oyster Bay Town Board has denied a request for a special use permit to operate an auto body repair and painting business in Hicksville, according to Town Councilman Howard T. Hogan.

"The applicants, Precision Mason Contracting Corp. and Phoenix Heritage, Inc., were seeking a special use permit to operate a Maaco auto body repair and auto body painting business," Hogan explained. "The property is located on the north side of West John Street approximately 950 feet west of Kuhl Avenue in Hicksville."

Tax Abatement

deducting the value of the improvements made to the land ($1 million) and reducing that value by 50 percent ($500,000). The full tax rate would then be applied against $500,000, rather than $1 million.

Having participated in the program since its inception, Nassau County currently offers assessment abatements to 869 businesses in the county, 29 of which are located in Hicksville. But for Bill Wagner, the program had a hitch.

The Nassau County board of assessors appraised another of his properties at $1.2 million although, according to Mr. Wagner, a private real estate broker estimated the value of the property to be closer to $585,000. Any reduction in the increase of the assessed value is diluted, according to Mr. Wagner, when that value is overassessed from the start.

"The county is in a Catch-22 situation; I feel for them," he said. "But for small businesses, its formulas don't always make sense."

For local school districts, to whom commercial and residential property owners pay a major portion of their property taxes, the assessment abatement program can be less than advantageous. While the program may have been successful in attracting commerce and industry to Nassau County, it apparently has not drawn new families to area school districts and consequently has not forestalled declining enrollment in the schools.

"The program isn't bringing additional children into the schools that we can tell," said William H. Hall, assistant superintendent for business in the Hicksville School District. "Hicksville may have reached a saturation point regarding building and commerce. My personal observation is that the program was successful overall, but I hear many municipalities saying no to it now because they have reached a peak in terms of development."

tant superintendent for business in the Hicksville School District. "Hicksville may have reached a saturation point regarding building and commerce. My personal observation is that the program was successful overall, but I hear many municipalities saying no to it now because they have reached a peak in terms of development."

The Hicksville School District attempted to opt out of the abatement program about six years ago, but because the Town of Oyster Bay — in which the school district is located — decided to remain in the program, the school district was overruled.

Twenty-four school districts out of a total of 64 in Nassau County have withdrawn from the program successfully, precluding commercial properties within their borders from receiving assessment reductions. Two months ago, the Bethpage School District, also located in the Town of Oyster Bay, won the right to withdraw from the program, primarily because the community is largely residential. An improvement project undertaken in the mid 1970s by the Grumman Corporation, virtually the only commercial interest in Bethpage, had reached the end of a 10-year assessment reduction period, according to John Bauer, assistant superintendent for business in the Bethpage School District.

"Encouraging commercial types of firms to build is fine if you have the land, but we have no land for that here," said Mr. Bauer. "Local residents might like the program because it encourages growth and jobs. But some around here might say that's a lot of baloney because it amounts to a shift in the tax bill over to the residential taxpayer."

But according to Abe Seldin, chairman of the Nassau County board of assessors, a break in taxes for commercial properties would affect other commercial properties rather than residential properties. By law, Nassau County is required to classify its assessment roles according to whether a property is residential or commercial, said Mr. Seldin. "I would think the program is helpful to all taxpayers in Nassau County because it has attracted business and commerce to the county who wouldn't have come here otherwise," he said.

Having an assessment exception program could be considered a necessity for local municipalities competing with counties throughout the state to be the home base for businesses. The pressure can intensify when major corporations threaten to leave the county if they should view their tax assessments as too high.

For some local companies, however, assessment abatements alone are not sufficient incentives for undertaking construction projects. "We would base such a decision on whether it would help our company and be beneficial to our employees, not because of tax abatement," said James Orr, executive vice president of George Malves and Company, an equipment distributor based in Hicksville. "Tax abatement would only be an extra fringe benefit!"

Zoning Change Requested By Hicksville Law Office

By DAGMAR FORS KARPPI

A hearing was held on Tuesday, June 17, on a petition by the Hicksville law firm of Donovan & Donovan, to change the zoning of a building they have been using as a law office at 211 Newbridge Rd. They want to change the zoning for the 2nd Street and Newbridge Road office from Residence, D, to Residence-Office District, R-O.

The firm has three members, Joseph, Matthew and Francis Donovan. Mr. Joseph Donovan has a real estate office at another location, but uses an office in the Hicksville building. Mr. Matthew Donovan represented the firm at Town Hall.

The property is two blocks from Old Country Road. There is enough distance for a driver to change lanes if he is going to head north. There is a tenant living in an apartment on the second floor of the house. No structural changes are planned. There is a wide driveway and a gravel area for parking.

The planning commission requires six parking spaces for the property, and they are available.

There were no complainants at the hearing. The decision was reserved for a future date.

Hicksville Bus Company

A Special Use Permit is being requested by Jberish Associates, Co. to utilize existing structures and buildings on its premises for school bus storage, maintenance and transportation and charter business at their location at 42 East Carle St.

The business is located at the northeast end of Carle Street, southeast corner of East Cherry Street, and the north east side of Richard Street.

A hearing will be held on Tuesday,

July 29, at 10 a.m. in the Hearing Room, Town Hall, East Building, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay.

There is a petition and map on file with the Town. They may be seen daily between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. at the office of the Town Clerk at Oyster Bay and Massapequa. The resolution number is 606.

Anyone interested in the subject, can come to the hearing, sign in with the Town Clerk, and state their opinion.

Hall of Fame To Proceed Graduates

The 435 members of the Hicksville High School Class of 1986 will march onto McCormack Field on graduation day led by Hall of Fame inductees for this year. This special touch will link past and present graduates of a school that has seen a significant number of students go on to distinguished careers, interesting occupations, and involvement in the betterment of the community. The Hall of Fame project was initiated last year under the leadership of the Superintendent and the Board's District Facilities/Community Affairs Committee to honor such former students. Trustee Daniel C. MacBride has served as the chairman of that committee.

Graduation ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday, June 29. Rev. Frank Nelson of St. Stephen's Lutheran Church will give the invocation. Principal Richard G. Hogan will make the introductions and Board President William P. Bennett and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Catherine J. Fenton will address the class and their guests. Michael Hripsack has earned distinction as Valedictorian.

Following the graduation program, Hall of Fame inductees and their families will be honored at a reception at the High School. The 1986 Hall of Fame honorees are:

Parish Workers' Party At Our Lady of Mercy

On Saturday evening, June 21, Monsignor James E. Boesel, caring pastor of Our Lady of Mercy R.C. Church, hosted the 1986 Parish Workers' party in the school auditorium - which provides the best dance floor around!

Father Charles Gartner joined Msgr. Boesel in greeting the many in attendance, while Father Michael Flynn, who had paused to chat at each table during so many past gatherings, was absent from this one because of his recent reassignment to the church of St. Margaret of Scotland in Selden. This dedicated mentor of our altar boys will be remembered by the congregation for the energetic and conscientious performance of his priestly duties during more than seven years at OLM.

Two priests have been newly assigned to Our Lady of Mercy. They are Rev. William Donnelly, who will arrive next week, and Rev. John R. Fencik, who came to the parish last week from Holy Trinity High School. Following an introduction by Msgr. Boesel, the personable Father Fencik was warmly welcomed by all. Also greeted with hearty applause was our gracious "summer visitor" of recent years, Father Leonard Namwera.

Music, prizes, refreshments, and good company were shared by the priests, sisters and laity. All who attended thank Msgr. Boesel for this most enjoyable annual event!

Investors' Guide

Q. My wife and I are in the 33 percent federal income tax bracket. We have individual retirement accounts and now have $10,000 we would like to invest in some type of investment where we can have access to the money and pay little or no tax on it. What can you suggest?

A. A tax-free money market mutual fund would be a safe haven. It would provide check-writing privileges, allowing you to withdraw money at any time. But the low dividend yield might diminish the appeal of such funds.

Take a look at mutual funds holding long-term municipal bonds. They also pay tax-free dividends. And many of them offer check-writing.

But, unlike money market mutual funds, mutual funds holding long-term bonds expose you to some risk. Their share values rise when interest rates fall and drop when interest rates climb.

Q. I have a profitable investment in a mutual fund holding government securities. However, I object to the high commission I paid the broker when I bought into this fund. Where can I locate a no-load mutual fund dealing in the same type of securities - and with a good past record?

A. Send $2 to Department D, No-Load Mutual Fund Association, 11 Penn Plaza, Suite 2204, New York, N.Y. 10001. You'll get a directory with information about all types of no-load funds.

Political History Of Hicksville

Capsule No. 2

As Harding, Coolidge and Hoover cemented Republicans in the White House during the 1920's, the clamor to get on the Republican band wagon in Oyster Bay township catapulted Hicksville into a super political status that extended through 20 years.

Hicksville became the bedrock of GOP eastern Nassau and Oyster Bay township power.

Even the popularity of Franklin Delano Roosevelt could not budge the 62-38 pluralities Hicksville provided.

Public office aspirants had to pass approval of local leaders.

The Hicksville Republican Club was named after Congressman Robert L. Bacon who came from Old Westbury. His winning races had the unqualified endorsement of the ruling Hicksville party.

Joseph F. Lebkuecher became judge of the District Court.

The seed of high office was sown when Ernest F. Francke was appointed to the Town of Oyster Bay Appeals Board.

Frank Chlumskey was awarded the Hicksville seat on the Town Board.

Helen Francke became the first woman Town Clerk in the state.

Hicksville was crucial to the strength of Leonard B. Hall of Oyster Bay who was elected to Congress and later Republican National Chairman. He led the successful presidential campaigns of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The coveted position of Superintendent of Highways was held by Henry Schnepf Sr. of Hicksville.

Henry G. Eisemann Insurance had the bulk of insurance policies. Major legal cases were handled by Charles Stoll and Morris Rochman.

Influence of local politicians accrued to the Hicksville village. Municipal services, roads, snow cleaning and zoning were superior services rapidly and efficiently acted on.

However, the early whisp of the penalty for loyalty was to be demonstrated to Hicksville Republicans.

Judge Joseph Lebkuecher retired. Schnepf was eased out, and Miss Francke could not survive the existing macho mentality and was not re-nominated.

Particularly cruel was that the party did confront Councilman Chlumskey with its decision to unseat him. He learned of it sitting at the announcement of the Republican slate while dining at the Nominating Convention Dinner in Rothmann's, East Norwich.

Hicksville was not to lose its clout for a while, but the penalty for loyalty was building.

Miss Liberty Display At Library

To celebrate Miss Liberty's birthday on July 4, the Hicksville Public Library has planned its own tribute featuring a multi display of posters, books and Hicksville memorabilia.

The display on view from June 30 to July 30 includes a series of posters "Images of Liberty," a hundred years of the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. Also, the library staff has gathered together, from the library's collection, a book display on immigrants and immigration. Last, but not least, on display in the Lobby Case will be a collection of Hicksville memorabilia assembled by Richard Evers. Mr. Evers has used material from the library's Local History Collection for this exhibit.

Also featured on display will be the much admired 1976 Bi-centennial Quilt prepared by library staff and members of the community. A wall quilt featuring Miss Liberty will be hanging near the circulation desk. This quilt was made by library staff members.

No Maaco For Hicksville Says Town Board Hearing

The Town Board refused to grant permission for a Maaco shop to operate an auto body repair and auto body painting business in Hicksville. Local residents had appeared at a previous hearing of the petition and had objected to the business. The decision was made June 17.

Many of the objections of the people in the area were incorporated into the resolution of the Town. They mentioned that it would have an adverse effect on the golf course utilized by patrons of the county park. It is near Cantiague Park.

The projected area is identified as Section 11, Block 499, Lot 101 on the Land and Tax Map of Nassau County. The lot is on the northerly side of West John Street, where it meets the westerly side of Kuhl Avenue. The Town felt that it would be noisy for local home owners. Air pollution would result from the paint, paint thinners and solvents. The site would not be in keeping with the area.

They stated that the on-site disposal of the product from the business would have a negative impact on the on-site underground water level and the nearby catch basin where drainage would accumulate.

They also cited that additional traffic would be brought to the West John Street area from the tow cars and wrecked vehicles being taken in and out of the area. Also, there are many other shops in the area which do auto body repair and painting.

Loss of Memory In the Elderly

By GARY GERARD, M.D.

Division of Neurology
Winthrop University Hospital
Mineola, New York

1. Is memory loss inevitable with age? No. Words like "senile" perpetuate the myth that aging means mental decline. Dementia is the general term for the group of brain diseases that result in loss of mental faculties including memory, learning, attention and judgment. I emphasize that these are diseases and there is no scientifically reliable study that indicates that dementia occurs in healthy individuals solely due to aging.

2. What percent of the population over 65 has dementia? Contrary to what most people think, dementing disorders are not the fate that awaits us all with aging. 85% of the elderly have normal intellectual function.

3. What is Alzheimer's disease? Alzheimer's disease is a progressive disorder of people think, characterized by memory loss, confusion and a variety of mental disabilities. It may come as early as the age of 40 but it is most commonly seen after the age of 60. As many as 10% of the patients diagnosed as having Alzheimer's do not. The cause of Alzheimer's disease is unknown and in some cases it does seem to have a familial component.

4. What are some of the signs of dementia and Alzheimer's disease? Memory loss, especially for recent events. In its early stages it can lead to inability to concentrate, anxiety, irritability, agitation, withdrawal, a loss of ability to calculate, lack of judgment, disorientation as to time and place. In the later stages some patients seem to wander about and lose their way. Some become prone to temper tantrums.

5. Are there any treatable conditions that cause dementia or resemble dementia? Yes, many. Conditions frequently masquerading as dementia which are often treatable, include depression, reactions to drugs, chemical imbalances and heart and lung problems. Most of these conditions are treatable and if the brain has not suffered damage by the time they are diagnosed, with appropriate measures the symptoms should abate. Other potentially reversible but less common conditions causing dementia include hydrocephalus due to the abnormal flow of spinal fluid, chronic meningitis, head injury, certain hereditary disorders, metal or chemical exposures and chronic alcoholism. Parkinson's disease, a very common disorder in the elderly resulting in tremor, slowness of movement and walking, is, at times, incorrectly diagnosed as being Alzheimer's disease. Another type of dementia which we are learning a tremendous amount about recently is that caused by blood vessel disease of the brain. This type of dementia occurs most commonly in patients with a history of high blood pressure, vascular disease or previous stroke. This has been inaccurately referred to in the past as "hardening of the arteries of the brain." With the advent of new imaging techniques one can identify this condition early and differentiate it from Alzheimer's. It is possible that preventive measures taken early in the course of this condition may prevent progression.

6. How does the doctor diagnose Alzheimer's disease and other dementias? First he determines if the patient has a dementia at all. Often patients and/or their families feel that a patient's memory is failing and the patient has behavioral problems when there are explanations other than dementia for this patient's apparent loss of mental faculties. An example of this is an instance where a patient becomes so anxious and fearful that they are developing Alzheimer's or some other dementia that this stress does, indeed, temporarily effect their memory and behavior. Another example is inapparent hearing loss simulating dementia. Determining whether a patient truly has dementia can be accomplished on the basis usually of a neurological exam and, if necessary, neuro psychological testing. If it is determined that a patient does have dementia one must then do various tests to determine the nature of the dementia. This includes various blood tests and noninvasive imaging of the brain such as a CT or NMR scan.

A Letter from Lulabelle...

...If you are one, how do you feel about being called a senior citizen? Do you feel all warm and glowy and comfy and grandmotherly...or do you seethe?...Even if you know quite well that you look like a senior citizen, it's really horrible to have some twerp of 19½ (at that age they still count halves!!!) call out, "OK, seniors, that'll be half price"...Even if we all love a bargain, I think that they should give us the benefit of kindness and say, "Please indicate if you are a senior citizen"...Because our sense of self was settled long ago, and even though our outer selves may have melted into crags and gullies, our inner selves are still skinny and young...You know it's true...aren't you sometimes absolutely astonished to notice that that chubby lady reflected in the store window is wearing the same dress you are—and is, in fact, you!...When you hear the music playing "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," don't your feet, without conscious planning, start to move to the wonderful steps of the Peabody?...Do you remember how we always ended each dance with a "dip"? And we still do when we take to the floor with that fellow who used to have the bounding red hair and now is a platinum blonde himself...and even though the arm encircling our waists has to reach considerably farther, the inside of us feels just the same as those heady days when we first danced cheek to cheek with that boy we'd been chasing for weeks...That's what I mean about being called a senior citizen—there's nothing wrong with it, heaven knows; in fact, it's an honorary title—but I want to name my status, not have some youngster who thinks thirty is old, put me in the doddering category.

Yours, Lulabelle

'Look Up Into The Sky'

My kind, sweet, loving father had been having problem-his lungs kept filling up with fluid, and so the doctor suggested that he be hospitalized so that they could find out the cause. My mother, two sisters and I were chatting, wondering what the treatment would be, hoping and praying that the doctor wouldn't pronounce the dreaded word "cancer" as one of the problems. When the doctor finally came into the waiting room, he went over to mother and took her hands. "We did all we could," he said, "we did all we could." My dad was gone. It was just a routine procedure, just an exploratory...but his heart gave out and he died. His death was so sudden, too soon...we weren't prepared. Couldn't we have another year? or two? The inevitable "Why?"

When we sat Shiva for my father, my sisters, my brothers, mother, aunt and uncles stayed in my home. There were ten grandchildren, all of whom loved their grandpa very much. Each of the adult mourners were wrapped up in their own grief, taking comfort and solace from each other, talking of our memories, our childhood, our past. Recalling with bitter-sweet tears, the happy stories of our beloved daddy. During this time, we hardly noticed the children's struggle to deal with their feelings. When I realized their pain, I took them, all of them, out on the porch in the backyard. It was a clear, dark, starry night, and we sat around in a circle holding each others hands. I asked them to tell me how they felt about grandpa's dying, I said if they wanted to, they could talk about all the good things that they'll remember about him. One by one they spoke through tears about things my dad had bought them, made for them, or places he had taken them. Finally, the littlest one started crying and said, "I don't want grandpa to die—I want to still see him." I held her in my arms and thought for awhile, as I rocked her back and forth.

"Look up into the sky, all of you. Do you see that tiny new star? Over there, to the left—do you see it?" I asked. "That is the newest star in the heavens. It arrived there the minute grandpa died. Anytime you want to see or talk to grandpa, just look up to the sky and you will find him. He'll always be there, for all of us, to protect us and guide us. We'll never be without grandpa."

As I was saying the words a calmness filled me, a feeling of peace replaced the anguish and the anger I had been feeling about my precious father's death. For you see, as I was spinning the tale to the children, I was believing it myself. I felt a loving, caring presence, that eased my heart and set me free. Free to accept the reality and the finality of my father's death.

Whatever happened to...The nickel telephone call. The nickel cup of coffee...The nickel pack of gum...The nickel "Saturday Evening Post"...The nickel subway fare...The nickel ice cream cone...A dime for a mountainous double-decker...The nickel Hershey bar, with or without almonds.

The penny postcard...Three cents for a first class stamp...A dime for a special delivery letter...Tootsie Rolls a penny apiece...A dime for a glass of cold beer...A quarter for a container of the foaming sudsy stuff...The old-fashioned, air-conditioned outhouse...A nickel for a bag of fresh-roasted peanuts in the shell.

A dime for a shoe shine...a dime for a hot dog...Fifteen cents for a shave...Two bits for a haircut...The nickel cola...A vice-president of the United States said, "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar." The country had a half-dozen good five-cent cigars...Fresh-baked rolls at the corner bakery three for a nickel...A chocolate éclair or a cream puff for a nickel.

Little neck or cherrystone clams on the half shell, a dozen for a quarter...1.10 for a five-course dinner at a good French restaurant in New York City. Including eight hors d'oeuvres, filet mignon, and a bowl of fresh fruit after dessert and coffee.

Starting and turning over the motor of your car with a crank. And on very cold mornings, a couple of motorists breaking their wrists or arms when the crank kicked back...A can of high-priced motor oil: a quart of quality for a quarter...Gasoline, fifteen cents a gallon...Two nickels for a piece of pie.

Speaking of nickels, did you hear the one about the guy in the Automat who kept inserting nickels in the slot and pulling out pieces of pie. "You can't eat all that pie," protested a friend. "Who cares," replied the first guy. "I'm not going to quit while I'm winning."

Opening lead — king of hearts

The squeeze is an enormously powerful weapon when it can be brought into play.

Here is an unusual case where West led the king of hearts. Declarer won with the ace, played the queen of spades, which held, and another spade, taken by East with the ace. When East returned a diamond, it became clear that he had started with only one heart and West with seven.

Declarer won, drew two more rounds of trumps, and cashed three more diamonds to produce this position:

South realized that East had the ace of clubs, since West would not have made a preemptive bid with as much as seven hearts to the K-Q-J and an ace on the side. It followed that it would be futile to lead a club at this point in hopes of finding West with the ace.

Instead, declarer led his last trump, praying that West had the queen of clubs — in which case he would be unable to find a convenient discard.

And so it was. When West elected to discard the ten of clubs, South led a low club to the king and scored his tenth trick with the jack of clubs.

It would not have helped West to discard a heart. In that case, declarer would have discarded a heart from dummy and exited with a heart, forcing West to lead the ten or queen of clubs and so hand South his tenth trick.

Zimmerman Wins Dem Nomination For Assembly

Robert P. Zimmerman, 31, of Jericho, a Long Island businessman and former Nassau County Representative for Lieutenant Governor Alfred DeBello, won the Democratic nomination to run for the State Assembly from the 15th Assembly District, comprised of communities in North Hempstead, Oyster Bay, and Hempstead.

Zimmerman, currently vice-president of Martin Greenfield Associates, a Westbury based marketing, advertising, and public relations firm, won the nomination at a convention held at Nassau Democratic headquarters in Mineola.

"I intend to immediately start a vigorous sidewalk campaign going door to door throughout the district to the morning of Election Day in November," said Zimmerman in addressing the standing room only convention. He also pointed out that his race for the Assembly was "very winnable," stating that the district "has a history of voting for Democrats." Former Assemblyman Angelo F. Orazio served many of the residents of the district for five terms.

Zimmerman's nomination was challenged by Thomas Schiliro, 34, of East Meadow, a high school social studies teacher. The vote was 209 to 182. Schiliro endorsed Zimmerman after the convention vote and pledged to work with him for party unity in the Assembly District.

A resident of Nassau County since childhood, Zimmerman has compiled an outstanding record of community service. He presently serves on the Long Island Association Small Business Council, the Rotary Club of Westbury, the Long Island Regional Board of the Anti-Defamation League, and the Nassau County Auxiliary Police. Zimmerman was recently appointed by Governor Mario M. Cuomo to the Long Island Economic Development Council.

Willet Ave. Kindergarten Performs Circus Show

Willet Avenue's Kindergarten class put on one of the best performances in what was the last circus show with Mrs. Geraldine Landgarten, Willet Avenue's Kindergarten teacher of 22 years.

Hosted by Ring Masters Daniel Voss and Hillary Weintraub, a startling array of acts were seen. The tightrope walkers, including Larissa Budnich, Ryan Mohanan and Tracey Bachteler showed great skill as they slowly "hovered" across the classroom floor. The magicians, David Ruderfer and Michael Verde amazed us all with their great feats of magic. They were assisted by the lovely Leesa Yu.

The amusing clowns, Scott Goodwin, Dean Michalos, Kerri Masterson, Effie Stamatinos, and Daniel Pederson, kept us all laughing throughout the show. The exotic snake charmers were played by Laura Shea and Christina Minervini. Frank Seier, the lion tamer, had his cats, Kamal Bordia, Devang Shah and Wendy Rogers performing an array of tricks. Tumbling across the center ring came the acrobats, Vanessa Stanley and Melissa Flynn. Muscular strongman, Daniel Koloski hoisted 500 pounds into the air. Amanda Ayres trained her elephants, John Kuller and Christopher Johnson, to perfection. There were lovely galloping ponies played by Dana Parente and Elise Parente. The marvelous dancing bear was Jeffrey Brousseau.

To highlight the circus was a beautiful show with Rainbow Brite, played by Jennifer Baez and her friends, Twink - Jenny Coffey and Starlight - Melissa Sarno.

It was an excellent job on the part of all the children who received high acclaim from their principal, Mr. Schwartz, as well as from all the parents of the class.

The parents of Mrs. Landgarten's class would like to take this opportunity to thank her for all the hard work she did for this event, as well as throughout the entire year. We wish her lots of luck on her retirement.

Children Discover "Anything Can Happen" At Arena

"Anything Can Happen" will be presented by the Arena Children's Theatre Company at the Arena Players Second Stage June 14 through July 20.

Come join in the fun as four kids, who have been hired to clean out a theatre, find that through a secret power called imagination — an empty theatre becomes a magical place. They journey into a land of poems, skits and music and learn that with a little bit of make-believe, "Anything Can Happen."

"Anything Can Happen" will be presented Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 1:00 p.m. Tickets are $4.00 each, all seats, all ages. For information, phone (516) 293-0674.

Arena Players Repertory Company is a non-profit theatre funded in part by New York State Council on the Arts and Suffolk County Office of Cultural Affairs. Located at 296 Route 109 in East Farmingdale, New York, Arena Players Second Stage is accessible to the handicapped.

"Entertaining Mr. Sloane" at Arena

"Entertaining Mr. Sloane", written by Joe

Orton, author of the current Broadway hit revival, "Loot", tells the story of young, handsome, seemingly innocent Mr. Sloane. He comes to look for lodgings and is immediately seduced by his landlady, desired by her brother and singled out as a murderer by their father. This "black comedy", winner of the London Critic's Award as Best Play of 1964 is alternately frightening, pitiful and funny. It is suggested for mature audiences.

"Entertaining Mr. Sloane" plays Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 9:00 p.m.; Sundays at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $7, Thursday; $9, Fridays & Sundays; $12, Saturdays. For reservations or information, phone: (516) 293-0674.

HOUSE CALLS

By EDITH LANK

FHA Won't Help

Dear Edith: We bought a home in 1984 and went FHA. They told us everything would be checked out before we got the loan. Since we have been here we had to do some electric work outside by the meter box because the electric company came and told us we better get it fixed. My husband called FHA and they said they don't go over the house with a fine tooth comb.

When we buy our next house, what should we do, because we would like to go for FHA again.—Mrs. T.D.

As you discovered, the FHA does not guarantee its inspection, and cannot be held responsible for anything that's missed.

Next time, make your purchase offer "subject to a satisfactory engineering report within three days of acceptance." Then hire your own building inspector, who will report directly to you.

PAYING OFF MORTGAGE

Dear Edith: I bought a house on a 25-year mortgage, FHA, in 1971. The balance is about $9,500. If I should prepay the balance this summer, would I save some money? If so, how much? — Mrs. A.L.

Those magazine articles telling how many thousands you can save by paying your mortgage off early never seem to mention one important question: where would you get the $9,500 to pay off the loan?

Borrowing it is silly, of course, and accomplishes nothing. If you plan to take the $9,500 out of savings, remember that your savings will then earn less.

If you want the emotional satisfaction of living in a house that's free and clear, by all means go ahead. But from a financial point of view, it doesn't much matter.

BUYING HUSBAND'S CONDO

Dear Edith: I'm 53 years old, married a second time five years ago and am living in my husband's condo with him.

I just sold my previous ranch home, profiting about $45,000. Either I will have to pay taxes since I'm not yet 55, or buy another home. My question: could I buy my husband's condo from him? Would this satisfy the reinvestment clause so I wouldn't have to pay the tax of the capital gains? — Mrs. N.K.

You're asking the wrong question.

The special homeowners' tax breaks are available only for the sale of one's own principal residence. When you sold, your residence was the condo, not the ranch house. That would probably make your profit subject to capital gains tax as with the sale of ordinary real estate.

SEVEN-DAY WEEK

Dear Edith: I've just got started in real estate, and I accept the fact that it is a full-time business, but is there a way of planning so it does not involve seven days a week? — N.A.

Newcomers who do well in real estate often yield to the temptation to work every single day. That soon leads to burn-out. A wise agent establishes, right from the beginning, a specific day off. If it can't be Saturday or Sunday, then the office should know that on Thursday, or on Friday, you won't even answer your phone. Someone else will have to cover for you.

Dearest Friends Buying

Dear Edith: My dearest friend and I are considering buying a home together. What kind of questions should we be considering? We would like to "pre-argue" some of these points in private before we fall in love with a home.—Ma. K. R.

You want to discuss things that could go wrong:

What if one of you dies? Shall that person's share go automatically to the survivor, or would you rather reserve the right to leave it to your own relatives or other heirs?

What will happen if you are no longer dearest friends? What if one wants to get married? Will either have the right—or the obligation—to buy out the other? If one wants to move out, can that person rent the unused bedroom to someone else? Would the remaining owner have the right to refuse a specific tenant?

What if one of you becomes unemployed? If the other steps in to pay all the costs, should your ownership shares be adjusted?

After you've discussed matters like this privately, go to a lawyer together. The attorney can help you put your agreements into proper fashion, and may suggest other possibilities that should be considered.

It's Their Bat And Ball

Dear Edith: three years ago we purchased a new home on an FHA loan at 12.5 percent interest. Now with the interest rate hovering around 9, I am interested in refinancing. A trip to the mortgage company with a check for $1,074 in "good faith" got the paperwork in motion.

When I received the estimate of settlement charges, I saw that it was being submitted to the FHA as a new loan. I am being charged title search, credit report, appraisal fee and other expenses as if this is a new loan. Is this absolutely necessary?—Mr. F. C., Irondequoit

In almost every instance, the only way to reduce your interest rate is to pay off the old loan and take out a new one. The lender wants a mortgage complete with all the paperwork required by institutions that may eventually buy the new loan on what is known as the secondary market.

Must you pay all these closings costs? Yes, because it's their bat and ball—or rather, their money—so they can make the rules.

Tax Break On Farm

Dear Edith: Does the $125,000 tax break apply to our home, if we live on a farm?—Mrs. S. N.

The Internal Revenue Service will treat your sale of the farm as two different transactions. For the portion of sale price attributable to your house, you can take homeowners' tax breaks on your profit. The rest of your profit will be taxable.

House Was Over 21

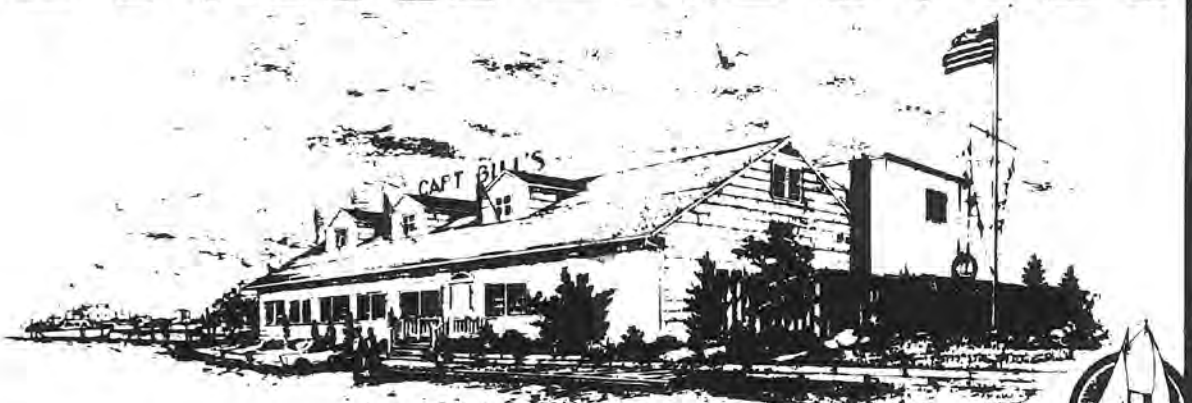

Dear Edith: In March, 1981, I purchased the house I still reside in. The agent for the seller furnished my wife and I a description of this home, listing ... age of home "21." To me this meant 20 to 25 years old. Recently I found out the house was 31 years old when I bought it ... Also the owners lied about many things, water in the basement, no key for the front door and the garage ... Friends of mine are telling me to sue since I overpaid for this building. Do I still have recourse after five years?—Mr. M. E., Greece

Don't take your legal advice from friends, and don't get it from a real estate columnist either. It will not be expensive to take your questions to a lawyer.

Off-hand, my impression is that none of your complaints is important enough to warrant the expense of a lawsuit—but it won't cost much to get a lawyer's opinion.

Real estate terms from "abstract" to "zoning" are defined in House Call's glossary of 64 terms. WHAT DOES IT MEAN! Send $1 and a stamped self-addressed envelope to Glossary, Box 18447, Rochester NY 14618. Edith will also answer personally any letter with a return envelope.

HICKSVILLE SPORTS

Garden City Eludes Hicksville Trap, 7-6, Wins New York State Title

It was a perfect setting for Lacrosse. The sun shone brightly on the green grass field of Garden City High School, where the quarter final match of the Nassau County playoffs between Hicksville and Garden City was contested May 28.

The Trojans of Garden City, 18-0, and ranked No. 1 in Nassau County and No. 2 in N.Y. State, was preparing to face-off against the Comets, 12-7, and seeded No. 8 in the "A" tournament.

The Comets started fast with three goals in the opening stanza and two goals in the second quarter to hold a 5-3 lead at halftime. The Comets increased their lead in the third quarter to 6-3, and maintained that margin through the first five minutes of the final quarter.

The Trojans struck suddenly with four and a half minutes remaining, to bring the score to 6-4. Andy Krauss—All-American midfielder for Garden City—began dominating the field as the Trojans rallied to tie the score with two minutes remaining. They tallied the winning goal at the final minute mark, to down the Comets 7-6.

The Hicksville Comets came close to pulling off the biggest upset in High School lacrosse in two years. The Comet players and coaches have much to be proud of. Comet lacrosse has been solidly established as a top-level program, and one to be watched closely next year.

The Comets' lacrosse office reported that eight players from the 1986 squad were selected to the All-League team. Three of those players were designated as All-Conference and one player was selected to the All-Nassau County team.
